“ Bobby played a very important role in my life. My father, Larry Yother, passed when I was just six weeks old, so I have no memories of him. Bobby helped fill that in, telling me what he was like ("a family man"), reliving anecdotes, and, with Willow Dean, showing me places in Gadsden and Albertville that played a role in my father's life. For that I am eternally grateful. Bobby was also very interesting in his own right - he knew Werner Von Braun, the scientist who was in charge of the rocket program in the '60's. Bobby also told me that he built the wiring harness for the Apollo program moon buggy, still resting many miles away on the moon. I really appreciated his thoughtfulness and kindness.
