“ My best best friend!! For many years you have been there for me and loved me unconditionally! Thanks for walking me down the aisle at my wedding! I was so honored to have my best friend by my side! I love you Jim and I'm going to miss you so very much everyday but I'll never ever forget you and will always cherish our friendship! You're the greatest man I've ever known and I'm gonna think of you every day! R.I.P my beloved friend! ❤️

“ James Walk was the best father a child could ask for, we never distinguished that technically he was our step-father. He treated me and my sisters like we were his own children. Some of my fondest childhood memories are of times i spent with him, He helped me build (built) my tree houses while teaching me how to use power tools and taught me to do all of the yard work. He took me to work with him and let me drive a back hoe, and never once allowed anyone to tell me I couldn't do these things because I was a girl. He taught me to drive a stick shift and didn't even get upset when i backed his truck into a car, although he never would let me pick the music in the truck while I was driving. (this makes me laugh because I still follow this rule, my car my music even if you are driving) Sometimes he was tough on me, like when he thought i was going to skip school and drove me to school himself and didn't let me out in front of the building but walked me all the way to my class, I was embarrassed but he was right. He will always fondly be in my memories.
